TIME flattened out and stood quite still and no one moved or breathed or made a sound. She saw, suddenly, panic chasing through her, that already she had made a mistake.

She shouldn't have said Tommy had been murdered. To all but one person sitting there on the big pleasant porch it was an outrageous thing to say.

She should not have said, "Tommy was murdered." She should have said, "The clock was supposed to fall on me."

She had lost ground—that much was obvious from their incredulous faces—and she would have to regain it.

Sam Blanding said, "Well, now, you'll have to go little further, Mrs. Bancroft. You must have some reason—"

But Rush said violently, as though the word were expelled from him. "Ann! Surely you—" and then he'd crossed the strip of green matting and was beside her chair, holding her hand. "Darling, it's all been too much for you. All of it. Ann, don't say anything you'll be sorry for—" Her eyes looked to him but he finished tensely—"just because you're upset." His fingers pressed hers. In warning? She couldn't be sure and anyway it didn't matter. She'd started now. She had to finish.

The words, wild and incoherent, began tumbling from her mouth. She told it all, every bit of it, the wax and the shoes, the letter from the man in Cheyenne, the crashing typewriter.

"It's been horrible!" A great shudder racked her. "And then the clock! I've been wild—I've—" Desperately she eyed Sam Blanding. "I've even thought—"

"What you're saying, Mrs. Bancroft—" Sam Blanding's voice was soft and gentle—"is that you believe someone is trying to kill you?"

THERE it was. Spoken right out loud by someone else. Put into words and hanging motionless over all their heads, in the stunned silence.

She nodded her head. "Well, you know," Sam Blanding sounded almost persuasive, "we'd have to have a little more to go on. Something concrete, that we could use as evidence."

"Naturally. Of course you do. I know that."

"Now you say there was a can of wax in your closet? Well, now, if we were to test that can of wax for fingerprints..."

She swallowed hard. "But it isn't there. Someone took it from my closet. When I went to look for it..." Her voice trailed away.

"When you went to look for it it wasn't there?" His voice was so soft, still, and so gentle.

This week 3500 shareholders of Mullins Manufacturing Corporation received the company's 29th Annual Report covering operations for the year 1947. Several weeks before this a special report on 1947 progress had been issued to all Mullins employees and their families. This digest combines the highlights of the two earlier reports, together with new material of special interest to Salem.

Report to the people of SALEM

Mullins Manufacturing Corporation believes that one of industry's important duties is to provide steady, well-paid jobs for employees. To do this we must please our customers—for their dollars pay wages. We must give shareholders a return on their investment—for their savings, invested in better tools of production, help employees earn better wages. Also, a company has an obligation to be a good neighbor, to support civic projects and to pay its share of the cost of federal, state and local government.

Mullins sales in 1947 were the highest in the company's history, and so were net earnings, but the important point about this is the fact that these earnings made it possible for Mullins to invest in new equipment and improvements. A company can't rest on its laurels. To continue to provide good jobs it has to remain competitive. That requires a steady flow of profits back into new machines, new departments and new buildings.

Money for wages for Mullins employees comes from the sale of truck fenders, washing machine tubs and other large stamping, made in Salem, and Youngstown kitchens, made in Warren. The 1947 payroll amounted to more than $10,000,000.

A well-filled parking lot for employees' automobiles is a pretty good measure of the way a company is fulfilling its obligation to its employees, and its community. For a long time Mullins parking lots have been pretty busy.

This stand-by propane gas installation at Warren cost $75,000. An oil stand-by system at Salem cost additional thousands, but they kept our people working during recent gas shortages. In 1947 $1,347,328 was used for plant improvements.

These new presses, recently installed, cost $135,000. A single large press, now on order, costs $151,000. Modern machines cost money, but modern equipment helps employees produce more and earn more—and helps Mullins meet competition.

In 1947 Mullins employees received $10,591,297—more than in any other year, with 80 per cent of it going to hourly-paid employees. Most of this payroll money was spent locally. In addition, we purchased goods from 427 suppliers in Trumbull, Columbiana and Mahoning Counties—ranging from steel mills to neighborhood hardware, drug and grocery stores. Altogether, these local firms were paid $5,177,953 by Mullins and they, in turn, paid out much of that amount in wages to their employees.

But here's the best part of the story: After paying wages and salaries, buying raw materials, paying $3,458,373 in Federal and local taxes, and all other costs of doing business, there still remained $1,347,328 that was put back into the business in the form of new machines and plant improvements. We hope to continue this program of modernization in 1948, for it's the best job protection there is. Mullins proposes to give its employees the equipment they need to make quality products at prices people are able, and willing to pay.

Garden Club Show Plans Made Early

Outlining preliminary plans for the seventh flower show Wednesday, Aug. 11, in the high school gym as a community project, the Salem Garden club aims to make the 1948 show bigger and better, with emphasis on conservation and horticulture.

Any person in Salem and vicinity may make entries in the various flower, arrangement and vegetable classes. There will also be a section for Juniors. This is to encourage them in gardening and flower growing.

Mrs. Joseph J. Waschler, club president, and Mrs. Raymond Stevenson, past president, are chairmen and co-chairmen, respectively, for the show.

Committee Chairmen
Committee show chairmen, who met Thursday afternoon in the public library assembly room, are: Schedule—Mrs. L. P. Koehnrich; staging—Mrs. C. E. McElwee and Mrs. R. Cuthbert, co-chairmen; finance—Mrs. C. B. McConner and Mrs. Earl Rogers, co-chairmen; ribbons and awards, Mrs. C. H. Waldron; horticulture—Mrs. G. F. Jones.

Entries—Mrs. Carl Flickinger; judging—Mrs. Burt Leeper; Junior—Mrs. Joseph Bogar; conservation—Mrs. H. E. Williams; tables—Mrs. R. F. Bonedecker; hostess—Mrs. R. F. Miller; publicity—Mrs. G. E. Kridler; clerks—Mrs. M. F. DeGrave.

Miss Donna Stoffer Is Class Hostess

Miss Donna Stoffer of W. State st. entertained the Cleaners class of Holy Trinity Lutheran church in her home Tuesday evening. Plans were completed for skating and theater party in Canton April 24 for 12 girls from the Fairmount Children's home.

Miss Nancy Stockton, president, presided at the meeting.

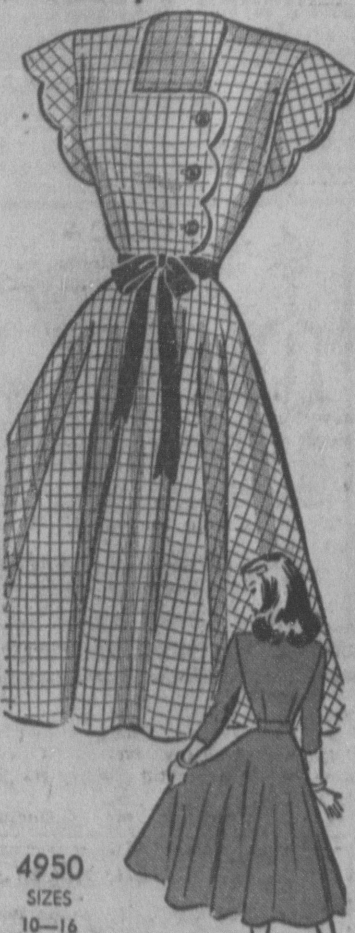

Mrs. Thomas Crothers, class teacher and other adults will accompany the girls to Canton.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Clarence Stoffer.

The next meeting will be with Miss Joyce Langherst of E. Fourth st.

Mrs. Doris Edds and daughter, Tonia Sue, have gone to Rein Mein, Germany, to join her husband, Master Sgt. A. G. Eddy, who is in the army. The Edds expect to make their home there for two and a half years. Mrs. Eddy is the daughter of Mrs. May West, E. Fifth st.

Ray and Fay Conser Honored At Party

Ray and Fay Conser, twin children of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Conser, Neward st., were crowned king and queen of the day when their parents gave a delightful party Thursday to celebrate their eighth birthday anniversaries. They were presented gifts.

The crowns were of fancy variegated paper and the "ceremonies" were conducted by Diann Wilson of Hanoverton and Leon Ugran.

Game prizes were awarded Billy Ballis, Orlando Piscitani, Fay Conser, Donna Jean Baxter, Beverly Smith and Barbara Losier. Each child also received a prize.

Mrs. Joseph Wilson and Mrs. Mary Meier of Hanoverton assisted Mrs. Conser in serving a lunch. A birthday cake was featured and novelty favors were given. There were 28 guests.

Birthday Dinner of W. S. C. S. Group Held

Mrs. George C. Beebe gave a devotional talk on "The Crucifixion" at a birthday dinner enjoyed by 22 members of Group 4, Methodist Women's Society of Christian Service, Thursday at the church.

The birthday anniversaries of Mrs. Edward Brudley, Mrs. Howard Gillett, Mrs. Emma Walton, Mrs. Elise Starke, Mrs. I. S. Thompson and Mrs. Cora Smith were celebrated.

There was a fruit centerpiece on the table, which was decorated with yellow candles in crystal candelabra.

Mrs. J. L. Getz conducted devotions. A meeting is set for April 8.

Past Noble Grands Hold Program

Mrs. James Fife told the Easter story at a meeting of the Past Noble Grands association Thursday evening at I. O. O. F. hall.

Following the business session and informal social evening, lunch was served by the committee which included Mrs. W. P. Davis, Mrs. Russell Waltham, Mrs. Margaret Renkenberger and Mrs. Emily Snyder. Yellow candles and arrangements of daffodils carried out the springtime theme on the attractive tables.

FULL-SKIRTED 'NEW LOOK' WHITTLED DOWN TO SIZE FOR NEW EASTER SUITS

By DOROTHY ROE

Associated Press Fashion Editor, NEW YORK — For her Easter suit, Mrs. U. S. A. has cut the "new look" down to size.

A survey of the New York coat and suit market, central supply point for the nation's Easter finery, reveals that the suits now being shipped for spring wear are far different from the full-skirted, wasp-waisted silhouettes shown to buyers at the original spring openings last November.

Manufacturers showed their first spring models with wide flaring skirts. Shipping the same suits with slim, straight, or only slightly flared skirts—and are receiving the heartfelt thanks of buyers who a few months ago specified full skirts on their spring suit orders.

Philip Mangione, one of the half-dozen or so manufacturers who set the nation's coat and suit styles each season sums up the situation thus:

"Sure, we showed full skirts at the openings. And the buyers ordered them. But when we started cutting the suits to ship to stores all over the country, we modified the skirts. In some cases we took out half the original fullness. In others we cut a new skirt entirely—a straight one."

"We were taking a chance, because most buyers has insisted on skirts as full as possible. But when you think of a size 40 woman putting on a circular skirt that calls for a doll-size waistline, you can see what was likely to happen to the 'new look' in the fitting rooms."

"We had had early reports of the heavy alterations necessary when customers bought some of these wasp-waisted, flare-skirted styles. And so, regardless of the so-called revolution in fashion, we cut the suits the way we thought women wanted them. And it turns out we were right."

"I've had telegrams and long-distance phone calls from buyers who ordered full skirts at the beginning of the season saying — 'thank you for not shipping what I ordered.'"

"A tailored suit, such as most American women demand, has to have a crisp look and it has to flatter the figure. The billowing skirt just doesn't go with it. For afternoon and evening dresses—yes. For tailored suits, no."

Confirm Trend
Other manufacturers confirmed the trend. In each case the suits that were being cut and shipped in volume were conservative styles with skirts either straight or only very slightly flared.

Some houses are continuing to cut the extreme wasp-waisted, full-skirted suits, but in small numbers. One manufacturer explained:

"These extreme silhouettes are strictly high style, and only a limited number can be sold. They are designed for women who have a half-dozen spring suits in their wardrobe, and can afford to indulge in extremes. The bread-and-butter styles will always be conservative."

Another manufacturer explained the modification of the 'new look' thus:

"These whirl skirts look good on kids—college and high-school girls, but for grown-up ladies a more subtle line is needed. Expensive, highly styled suits for mature women must look distinguished, not sensational. And that's why most of our spring suits are being shipped with conservative skirts."

As to the length—it's 12 to 14 inches from the floor for street styles—or just below mid-calf, the most flattering length for most women. No dust-ruffles are in view as yet.

Women who have looked forward to selection of an Easter suit with qualms this year may relax. Plenty of crisp, conservative, straight-skirted styles will be available.

Recent Bride Feted At Shower Party

A shower of miscellaneous gifts was presented Mrs. Joseph McInerney (nee Jones) at a delightful post-nuptial party given by Mrs. Thomas R. Corrigan Wednesday evening at her home, E. Pershing st.

Mrs. R. E. Warner and Mrs.

Maude Jones shared honors in the "500" games. An Easter motif was used effectively in the lunch appointments.

Nine Class A Regionalists Are Chosen, Four In Class B

Remainder Of "Sweet 16" To Be Selected In Games Tonight Throughout Ohio

BY FRITZ HOWELL
Ohio AP Sports Editor

COLUMBUS, March 13.—Nine Class A teams and four in Class B held regional berths today in Ohio's high school basketball championship.

Remainder of the "sweet 16" in each division will be filled out tonight as finals are staged all over the Buckeye realm. Regional events, four in Class A and four in Class B, will be held next week, with each classic sending a lone entrant to the state finals here April 1, 2 and 3.

Just how tough the Class B division looks this year—with all of the 1947 finalists having been eliminated in the early stages—is shown by the records of the four who have battled their way through the county, sectional and district play.

The four have won a total of 105 games while losing only seven. Only unbeaten team in Class B is Bremen of the central district, which last night rolled over Marion St. Mary 42-36 for its 27th straight conquest. The other qualifiers, with their records are Lima St. Rose 25-2, Miller City 20-4, and Glenford 33-1.

In Class A two big surprises hit the regional jackpot. Steubenville making the grade with a 13-1 record by turning back a good Martins Ferry team last night 57 to 56, and Stow getting in with a 27-24 win over Wadsworth. Stow has won eight of 17 games, including tournament play.

Others in the Class A list of qualifiers are Columbus Central with a 25-1 record, which brushed aside three-beaten Grandview 59 to 55; Akron South 14-3, Cleveland Heights 15-4, Bowling Green 12-8, Mansfield Madison 20-2, Walnut Hills 18-6, and Toledo Central Catholic.

The big guns in Class A—Champion Middletown and unbeaten Findlay—get their qualifying chance tonight. The Middies, winners of the title three of the last four years—and nosed out of the fourth by Bellevue by two points—meet Miamiburg at Dayton and are favored to run their undefeated string to 22.

Findlay, with 22 straight already wrapped up, meets Bucyrus (16-4) at Findlay tonight. Hamilton Catholic, winner of 23 of 24, and expected to furnish Middletown the toughest opposition in the regional must get by Dayton Fairmont to get into the Cincinnati event with the Middies, Columbus Central and Walnut Hills.

Coshocton (16-5) meets Dover (9-9) at Dennison tonight for a Class A regional berth, but the Coshoctons needed a double overtime 44-42 win over Zanesville last night to stay in the running. Jim Jadin of Zanesville tied the game with a long shot from behind the center line, the ball being in the air when the final shot sounded. But Carl Hill of Coshocton settled it with an underbasket two-pointer with a minute to go in the second overtime.

Next week's Class A Regionals are scheduled at New Concord, Youngstown, Toledo and Cincinnati, with the Class B events at Youngstown, Toledo, Athens and Springfield.

The survivors, early qualifiers for regional tournaments, and pairings for Saturday's finals, with some of the won-lost records:

CLASS A
Eastern district: At Steubenville, Steubenville 13-1, to New Concord regional.

At Dennison: Saturday finals, Dover 9-9 vs Coshocton 16-5. (Winner to New Concord regional.)

Central district: At Columbus, Columbus Central 25-1, to Cincinnati regional.

Northeastern district: At Akron, Stow 8-9 and Akron South 14-3, to regional.

At Euclid Shore: Cleveland Heights 15-4, to regional.

At Youngstown: Saturday finals (two to qualify for regional berths) Canton South 19-1 vs Youngstown East 12-4; Canton McKinley 17-2 vs Youngstown Chaney 17-4.

(One of five northeastern district qualifiers will play in regional at New Concord, four at Youngstown.)

Northwestern district: At Defiance: Bowling Green 12-8, at Sandusky: Mansfield Madison 20-2, at Findlay: Saturday finals, Bucyrus 16-4 vs Findlay 22-0; at Toledo: Toledo Central Catholic.

(Three qualifiers and Saturday's winner at Findlay to Toledo regional.)

Southeastern district: At Athens: Saturday finals, Hillsboro 18-4 vs Portsmouth 15-5. (Winner to New Concord regional.)

Southwestern district: At Dayton: Saturday finals, Dayton Fairmont vs Hamilton Catholic 23-1; Middletown (defending champion 21-0) vs Miamiburg. (Both winners to Cincinnati regional.) At Cincinnati: Walnut Hills 18-6, to Cincinnati regional.

Ohio State Hoping For Top Baseball 9

COLUMBUS, March 13.—Flattened in football, bounced around in basketball but tops in indoor track, Ohio State currently is nursing hopes of being the Big Nine's best in baseball this spring.

Coch Fred Stahl keeps thoughts of a Western Conference championship in the back of his mind, however. Right now he has to pick 17 players to go on a six-game training trip through Texas.

Stahl lost only four men—two outfielders, an infielder and a pitcher—from last year's second place team. Illinois won the 1947 conference crown.

Top twisters at the moment are Pete Perini of New Village, N. J., Southway Bob Christopol of Cincinnati and Dick Magato of Columbus. Jack Hammett of Mansfield is providing some of the principal opposition.

Holdovers will man three of the four infield spots. Fred Taylor of Zanesville is a standout at first, Al Aerni of Cincinnati is back at second and Bob Weygant of McDonald has been shifted from third to shortstop. Favored on early showing for third base is Bill Bernhardt, last year's utility infielder.

A prize list of money winners in the recent Salem bowling tournament will be printed within a few days and made available to all interested bowlers, Don R. Smith, bowling association secretary announced today.

He said the prize checks will be distributed late in the month or early in April.

With the prize distribution Smith will complete a staggering amount of work in connection with the tournament. The average bowler competing in the tourney does not realize the chores that are necessary to stage the event, even before it starts.

Smith, as secretary, had to prepare the schedule for the tourney and make adjustments when advised that certain teams or bowlers couldn't appear when listed. Then he had to worry about the keggers arriving on time to bowl (some didn't) and make substitutions.

After the bowling Smith and his wife tabulated all the results and kept bowlers posted on the leaders. They spent up to 13 hours at the alleys on the four days of the tourney.

He is probably glad its all over.

The following are the leading scores in the Salem Women's Bowling association tourney, now being conducted on the Kyser lanes in Columbiana.

Deny Sentence Cut

CINCINNATI, March 13—U. S. District Judge John H. Druffel yesterday turned down a request by Charles L. McIntosh, 25, Dayton, for vacation of his three-year prison term. McIntosh was shown in court records to have stolen an automobile, a trailer, motorboats and two airplanes a year ago.

Says Hitler Lives

NEW STORY of Adolf Hitler's disappearance is told to the Allied Military Government near Munich by Friedrich Mackensen, former German air force captain and grandson of Field Marshal von Mackensen. The pilot, now paralyzed in both legs, says that he flew in a Luftwaffe formation that escorted the Nazi leader from Berlin to Spain, but that his own plane crashed in France. Ebright Discusses Ohio Bonus Costs

NEW YORK, March 13—Is it going to cost Ohio only $200,000,000 in bonds to pay its World War II bonus?

That's the figure Ohio's State Treasurer Don H. Ebright set as a possibility yesterday in a talk to the municipal forum.

The state is authorized to issue $275,000,000 in bonds to pay a maximum bonus of $400. Sale of a $200,000,000 issue is set for next Tuesday.

Ebright, a member of the state sinking fund commission which is administering the bonus, said current estimates of bonus payment totals are $20,000 at an average of $300 for a total of $246,000,000.

Of this sum, $25,000,000 was appropriated from treasury funds, leaving only $20,000,000 to $25,000,000 to be added to complete the payments, Ebright said. That sum, he added, might easily be obtained from an accumulation of treasury surplus.

"If revenues continue as they are presently coming into the state treasury, and barring any unforeseen needs," he explained, "there should be ample funds in the treasury unappropriated, which could be used to make up the necessary amount to complete the payments. "Personally, I am of the opinion that there will not be another bond issue."
